His Diet Forty Years After Marriage.

At one of our hotels last night there was registered a new married couple from Nebrasks. Of course the bridal chambers was placed at their disposal, &c., and when they entered the dining room arm in arm for the purpose of stowing away a stated amount of eatables, the regular boarders took in the sight without extra charge. After they were seated at the table a polite waiter came around to take their orders. The groom wanted tex and toast-the bride said she would have toast and tea. The next order was from a drover from Texas; he very emphatically exclaimed "(five me meat, by G-d, and plenty of it. I have been married forty years, and the old woman says tea and toast is played out." His order was filled, and the new married couple nibbled their toast and drank their tea, and were happy to all appearances.-Kaneas City Express.
